Perfin pattern A60 is listed in the Catalog with the Anglo-Cal Bank Ltd of San Francisco, California as the confirmed user. Supplementary information in the Appendix lists several other users. These are: Anglo California Bk; Anglo & London Nat'l Bk; and Wells Fargo Bk all of San Francisco. The illustrated cover provides the full name of the second listed supplementary user. This March 15, 1929, posting's corner card lists "The Anglo & London Paris National Bank, San Francisco, Calif" as the user.

The Baloughs used abbreviations throughout their illustrated catalog. The limitations of page size and the unforgiving spacing requirements of a typewriter. The new catalog, which is currently being prepared, will not suffer from this limitation. John Randall is using a computer and restricting each page to 25 pattern, hence the smaller type size and multiple lines for each entry will enable him to provide more complete and accurate descriptions. An other advantage of a word processing program will also allow John to make and correct entries without retyping entire pages or sections. I have forwarded a photocopy of this cover to the US Catalog Editor, John Randall, with the recommendation that the user's name on this cover replace the second entry of the supplementary information in the Appendix provided that his files do not have an conflicting information.
